Introduction to the Liturgy of the Word
Seventh Sunday in Ordinary Time

JUSTICE AND FAITHFULNESS

We have heard much in recent years about justice. It is a part of both religious and secular worldviews. The simplest way of understanding justice is that it is an acknowledgement that everyone is due their rights and dignity as sons and daughters of God and as an expression of our common humanity. While it is simple enough to understand, the reality is too oftentimes lacking throughout human history. We see this in a myriad of ways on how we have mistreated others due to their race, color, creed, or ethnic background. Those whom we deem different from us are placed in categories of prejudice and injustice. As we turn to this Sunday's first reading from the First Book of Samuel, David is confronted with a choice. He can kill King Saul who wants David's life; or he can let the king live. This is a quandary that at first may leave many perplexed. Would not David be justified in killing the king since the king desires David' death? Should he not kill the king to preserve his life? After all, David is innocent and in fact has served the king well. On the other hand, Saul is jealous of David and it colors his thinking. Yet this reading does not speak only of justice but also of faithfulness. David may have been justified in killing Saul but faithfulness to God's law and the sanctity of life prevents David from doing so. We note here that justice and faithfulness work hand in hand. Otherwise, we can see what we have seen in recent years: violence in the name of justice. There is a legitimate call and desire for justice but unhinged from faithfulness it leads only to another form of injustice. Hence the old expression that the "oppressed become the oppressors". David understood that true justice, as opposed to vengeance, is a work of God and is part of God's will for all people. Yet it is the same God who told us through His Son to "turn the other cheek" and "love your enemies and bless your persecutors". This may be a difficult thing for those who have been oppressed to understand let alone accept. It certainly was for the people under the foot of the Roman Empire which would enter into long periods of profound corruption and brutality against its own people. Why would our Lord then make such a command? As mentioned above, if those who are suffering injustice or those who are working for justice, detach themselves from God and the law of love, great evils can ensue. In the Gospel reading from St. Luke our Lord extends His teaching. Simply put, anyone can love and bless those they love and who love them in return. Our Lord is telling us that this is not enough for His followers. We are not only to "turn the other check" and bless our enemies and persecutors, we are also to "do good to them". It is a radical teaching that has shaken the consciences of Christians for 2000 years. Yet it is what separates the saints from everyone else. The Sacred Scriptures this Sunday leave us with necessary but perhaps unsettling questions: How do we approach and deal with those people who been unjust towards us? How do we deal with injustice both societal and personal? In whatever circumstances we find ourselves in, it would do us well to remember David, who in his quest for justice did not breach the law of love, did not substitute one injustice for another, did not let hatred and vengeance cloud his judgment; did not disregard the law of love and mercy.

If you have an asset such as appreciated stocks, a retirement plan, art, real estate or other assets, a planned gift could be a smarter way to give than cash alone.

With a planned gift, like those mentioned above, you can sustain our beloved parish while also making smart financial decisions to benefit your family.

Stewardship Thought

"But rather, love your enemies and do good to them, and lend without expecting anything back…"
~ LUKE 6:35

Easier said than done, right? But, if we are to imitate Christ, most of us need to practice mercy and compassion more frequently. Start with the little daily annoyances that we experience, the unkind word or hateful glance we receive. Instead of plotting revenge on that person, try saying a quick prayer for that person. Praying for our enemies doesn't change them, it changes us. Mercy and compassion will keep us on the path to holiness.
