Stewardship Thought

"Or who has given the Lord anything that he may be repaid?"

- ROMANS 11:35

St. Paul reminds us of a central fact of stewardship. We cannot give God anything - He already owns it all. God made everything, including us. Since we are made in His image, we too, are called to be generous. How we use our God-given gifts becomes our gift back to Him. Gratitude for all we have been given opens our hearts to joyful generosity! And, through our generosity, we just may be the answer to someone else's prayer.

UPON THIS ROCK I WILL BUILD MY CHURCH

Many theologians, both lay and ordained, as well as bishops and priests, have noted over the past 50 years a "crisis in ecclesiology." This crisis points to a complete misunderstanding of the nature of the Church and its role in revealing Christ to us. For too many, including Catholics, the Church is simply an institution, its teachings a matter of opinion that can be disregarded at will, its very existence questionable. What is forgotten is that the Church, while having an institutional dimension to it, also has a charismatic dimension. It is true that the institutional dimension has been at times overemphasized, especially since the Middle Ages, while the charismatic dimension has receded. Since the Second Vatican Council there have been great strides made in balancing out the institutional and charismatic dimensions of the Church. The institutional side keeps order and balance while the charismatic side opens itself to the movement of the Holy Spirit who continues to breathe new life and energy into the Church. Our Lord established the Church with both dimensions in place for the Church to be complete. To over emphasize the institutional dimension at the cost of the charismatic dimension is to deny the new life and gifts the Holy Spirit can bring into the Church and her faithful. To overemphasize the charismatic dimension at the cost of the institutional is to leave the Church and her faithful open to error. The Church's very life comes from Christ Himself. St. Paul reminds us that the Church is the bride and body of Christ. A bride and a body are not institutional but alive as is our Lord. In this Sunday's Gospel reading we find the Church's foundation lain on St. Peter's confession of faith, "You are the Christ, the Son of the living God." We note again that Peter's confession of faith is not in something but Someone. The Church built on Peter's confession has Christ, the Son of the Living God, as its Head. It is the same Christ who promised to send forth the Holy Spirit to guide the Church into the fulness of truth. The institution of the Church can only proclaim the fulness of truth when her charismatic dimension is alive and discerned. From this flows the second part of the Gospel reading, "what you bind on earth is bound in heaven." This does not mean that God is waiting in the heavens to see what the Church decides to do and teach and then simply goes along with it. The Church's charismatic dimension, open to the Holy Spirit's promptings, declares on faith and morals what has already been decreed by God. Therefore, Church teaching does not reflect one opinion among others but rather binds consciences in truth. This is not always easy to accept as some teachings can be difficult to live or even fully understand. Nevertheless, since Christ established the Church on St. Peter's confession of faith and promised the Holy Spirit to keep the Church free of error on faith and morals, these teachings require assent. Yet we must go back to the first point. Only if we recognize the Church as the body and bride of Christ on earth and Christ as its Head, can we possibly live these teachings faithfully. As I mentioned in a recent reflection, the late Pope Benedict XVI stated that Christ must be known before the Church and her doctrine can make sense, let alone lived faithfully and peacefully. We must take care ourselves to not overemphasize one dimension of the Church over the others. In can happen very easily and quite frankly deliberately. To over emphasize the charismatic dimension can free us up to accept, believe, and advocate for anything we want without reference to the Church. To over emphasize the institutional dimension can free us up to live in our boxed corner where things are comfortable, the minimum is done, and the challenges of faith are non-existent. Both are a detriment not only to the Body of Christ the Church but also to us who are members of the Body for if our understanding of the Church is lacking so also is our full understanding of Christ her Head.
Fr. John Maduri
